As part of this recognition, KCM was evaluated on a range of factors that reflect how effectively the firm supports, develops, and engages its employees. The distinction highlights KCM's long-standing commitment to cultivating an environment grounded in accountability, collaboration, and employee empowerment. Through its focus on professional development, thoughtful leadership, and a people-first approach to workplace policies, KCM continues to build a culture that enables employees to thrive while delivering strong results for clients.

Presented by Pensions & Investments, the global news source of money management and institutional investing, the 14th annual survey and recognition program is dedicated to identifying and recognizing the best employers in the money management industry.

"As their employees attest, the companies named to this year's Best Places to Work list demonstrate a commitment to building and maintaining a strong workplace culture," said P&I Editor-in-Chief Julie Tatge. "In doing so, they're helping their employees, clients and their businesses succeed."

Pensions & Investments partnered with Workforce Research Group, a research firm specializing in identifying great places to work, to conduct a two-part survey process of employers and their employees.

The first part consisted of evaluating each nominated company's workplace policies, practices, philosophy, systems and demographics. This part of the process was worth approximately 20% of the total evaluation. The second part consisted of an employee survey to measure the employee experience. This part of the process was worth approximately 80% of the total evaluation. The combined scores determined the top companies.
